RENO AND ITS HOLLER.

Reno, sanctified Reno, with its religiously inclined residents who are always acclaiming to the world at large, that none but the pure at heart should apply for admission within the gates of that city, and whose antics resemble the actions of a fanatical bunch of Holy Rollers, is suffering another brain storm. Poor Reno.

The cause of the present disturbance is the closing of the Southern Pacific railroad shops at Sparks, which results in no small loss of money to the merchants of the saintly city. Hence the holler.

Now there was a time about a year ago when a similar noise emanated from the throats of the Reno populace and the foremost of the calamity shouters journeyed to Carson (not at their own expense to be sure) and endeavored to intimidate the legislators into voting in favor of the anti-gambling bill. Churches sent delegation after delegation of Sunday school teachers and pupils, chaperoned by the preachers; sewing societies sent their most active members and even the Woman's Christian Temperance Union had advocates in the mighty throng that was trying to pave a way to the glorious hereafter for every resident of Nevada, whether or not. The success of the pilgrimage was foretold by the crestfallen appearance of the flock of chosen ones, as they departed from the capitol that evening for their homes in the city on the banks of the silvery Truckee (since named the River Jordan).

At that time the Renoites never gave thought to the idea that such a measure meant the loss of thousands of dollars to the residents of southern Nevada where the license from gambling provides the major portion of the funds to conduct the affairs of the different counties. At that time southern Nevada's ox was being gored, and it was as nothing to Reno, but now when Reno's ox is receiving an elegant going, the circumstances are altogether different. Oh, you One Reno.

TALKING ABOUT RENO.

Who ever thought the time would come when the people of this country would have to look up to a hog? And yet, at $8.95 per 100 pounds, the only way to see that animal is to look up.—Reno Journal.

THE REFORMED REFORMER

"I observe," remarked the Reformed Reformer, as he entered this office last evening, borrowed the editor's easy chair and helped himself to our cigarettes," that the banking situation in Nevada has been forgotten now that politics has advanced to the center of the stage. Isn't it strange how the public mind will divert over night from one important topic to another, and yet, from my understanding, there are thousands of poor people in this state anxiously awaiting a definite report as to what became of their savings.

"From an article that appeared in a Reno paper I thought that the depositors would be paid in full by this time. The piece in question stated that Mr. Golden was determined to liquidate the indebtedness of the bank and had placed $600,000 of his personal fortune back of the defunct institution. He was further quoted as saying: 'I don't care if I walk out of Reno dead broke; I am going to see that the depositors are protected and that dollar for dollar is paid!'

"Of course the Reno people swallowed his story like the proverbial whole when he dined on Jonah. From my understanding of the people of Reno they are a susceptible sort, clanish as a bunch of Missouri immigrants or a Kansas delegation of Seven Day Adventists, and always believing and trusting the person who makes his speech first.

"Speaking of that personal fortune and the desire to liquidate the debts, I don't remember reading any press notices referring to the fact that the receiver of the bank had been tendered that $600,000. Probably it was handed to him in the dark with instructions not to divulge the name of the philanthropic donor.

"Reverting back to politics I wonder why the republican member of the state bank commission did not attempt to make life miserable for his two democratic colleagues. Instead he let democracy rule and was content to keep a silent tongue. His silence, however, was very effective and resulted in the present day situation of the Nye and Ormsby bank and also the State Bank and Trust company.

"A few days ago I noticed an article in an eastern paper commenting on the improvement in the banking situation there, but as yet I have failed to read anything on a like subject concerning the Nevada banks. I also heard a rumor that several eastern financiers were coming out to Nevada for the purpose of starting banks here, as the east was getting a little too hot for them. They should have little trouble in securing buildings, but I have my doubts about the depositors taking the bait."

Helping himself to another cigarette, the Reformed Reformer, with a curt farewell, left the office and hurried down to the free roll of the keno game.

PUGILISM IS A

LEGAL BUSINESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—According to a ruling handed down yesterday by Judge Kelly in the police court, pugilists plying the vocation under the new Tennessee law legalizing eight-round bouts are engaged in "legal business, as are bankers in the banking business."

The issue was forced by Phil Brock, the Cleveland, O., fighter, who appeared to answer charges of vagrancy and loitering. The case will be taken to the civil court, it is declared by Brock's attorney, who claims false imprisonment.

BANK SALOON
OPEN FOR BUSINESS
THIS EVENINGWELL KNOWN MEN WILL HAVE CHARGE OF THE NEW RESORT.

Under the management of Phil Allen and Van A. Newman, the Bank saloon will be reopened at 5 o'clock this evening with a blaze of glory. Both gentlemen are well known in Tonopah and number their friends by the score. Courteous, obliging and possessing all the virtues necessary, the new venture of the two gentlemen is an assured success. Like the Bank of old, nothing but the best will be handled and A-1 goods from beer to the grape will be dispensed.

With the reopening this evening there will be plenty of edibles for the patrons, together with excellent music. It will be an occasion like the reopenings of the pioneer days of the camp and everybody is invited to participate.

RULES FOR THE
EAGLES MASQUERADE
ARE ANNOUNCEDALL MASKS WILL BE RAISED ON ENTERING THE HALL.

All the prizes to be distributed at the Eagles masquerade ball, which will come off on the evening of February 22, have been placed on display and have excited considerable enthusiasm among those intending to attend the affair in costume. The committee announced yesterday that all masks would have to be raised at the door, as no objectionable characters would be allowed. Spectators not in costume will be barred from dancing until the time of unmasking.

The committee will have considerable trouble in making the distribution of the awards, especially in selecting the homeliest woman in the house. They may choose some hen-pecked husband, who by masking, may obtain a chance to get even for some old grudges. Whoever the judge happens to be it will serve him well to be fleet-footed.

LOCAL SINGER WILL APPEAR AT THE BUTLER

WALTER DOW WILL SING ILLUSTRATED SONGS COMMENCING TODAY.

The management of the Butler theater wishes to announce a special program for today and Sunday at which time they will show a grand lot of pictures which will be both amusing and entertaining, in addition to the big program of pictures. Mr. Walter Dow, the well known local baritone singer has been engaged to sing the illustrated songs. The pictures are "The Deacon's Daughter," a big outdoor drama; "Shooting an Oil Well," educational; "Our German Cousins," comedy; and a big military picture entitled "Review of United States Troops at Fort Leavenworth, Kan." scenic. This program will be on for Saturday and Sunday with matinee at 2 o'clock each day. No one should miss this show as it is positively one of the best ever shown at the Butler theater. First show at 7 o'clock.

PERSONAL

S. W. Snyder, of Rhyolite, came up from the southern section last evening.

C. L. Booth, who spent the last two months in San Francisco, arrived from the coast yesterday.

Bob Stewart, Sodaville's most prominent citizen, arrived yesterday for a few days' stay in this city.

Thomas S. Carnahan, manager of the Tonopah Liberty property, came in from Liberty last evening.

Mrs. R. J. Mapes, wife of Dr. Mapes, left yesterday for San Francisco, where she will visit for a month.

George N. Delinger, of Reese River, who has been in town for the past week on jury duty, leaves this morning for his home.

Z. V. Stalnaker, representing the Nevada Press company of Reno, was in town yesterday, but failed to land any business for his firm. The policy of "patronize home industry" seems to be working against the northern printing firm.

RESULT OF SEGREGATING COUNTY

The county commissioners of Lincoln county have fixed the state and county tax rate at $4.12 on the $100. In Pioche, the rate is $6.02 on each $100, in Panaca $7.12 and in Caliente $4.87. These towns have special taxes.

STOCK MARKET

After the all-around reaction of the stock market of Thursday, southern Nevada stocks brightened up yesterday and advanced a few points. Both Montana and Midway regained the lost point of the previous day's session, but Belmont was again the victim of the profit takers and declined 7½ cents. West End suffered a relapse, from apparently, a like cause and lost three points.

Goldfield Consolidated aviated 25 cents with Florence on the uphill trend to the extent of 7½ points to the good. Booth regained one of the points lost during the last two days and closed strong at 15 cents.
